PARK COUNTY, WYOMING

In the 2022 General Election, write-in votes impacted the results of two races that had no declared candidates: a rural position on the Meeteetse Conservation District Board and a position on the Meeteetse Museum Board. Park County Elections staff formally reviewed those results, determining that the conservation district race was won by Shawn Shepperson and the museum district race won by Michael Oliver. Those write-in results were subsequently reviewed and certified by the canvas board on Nov. 10, 2022.

For the benefit of the public, elections staff also decided to informally review write-in results for all state- and county-level races and the Cody school board race, in which an individual ran a write-in campaign. While these additional write-in results should be accurate, they should be considered unofficial, as they were compiled informally and were not reviewed by the canvas board.
